Industrial Designer

Biography

Frederic Rätsch studied Industrial Design at the Muthesius Academy of Fine Arts and Design in Kiel, Germany, where he honourably graduated in 2014. Afterwards he worked at Atelier Steffen Kehrle in Munich. He moved to London to proceed his study within the Design Products masters programme at the Royal College of Art, from which he graduated in July 2017. Recently he worked for Sam Hecht's and Kim Colin's design studio Industrial Facility.

Frederic is fascinated by everyday objects and especially by the industrial production in perfection. He believes in sustainability through long-lasting emotional relationships between human and object. Pushing boundaries, questioning known typologies and proposing new solutions on an industrial scale represent his major goals.
